Walmsley May Be Ousted at Special Session

Louisiana Solons Called by Allen in Extra Session

Call Issued Tuesday Afternoon—May Convene August 19

PROBABLY FIVE DAYS

State Capitol Silent as Legislative Plans Are Put Forth

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Governor Allen announced he would issue a call for a special session of the legislature Tuesday afternoon.

He did not say when the session would convene.

It was widely reported that it was planned to call a five-day session from August 19 to 23 with an extension of the session if necessary.

The governor did not say what the legislature would consider.

It is reported the legislature will take action to impeach Mayor Walmsley of New Orleans.

Impeachment Rumored

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—It was learned from an authoritative source Monday that a special session of the Louisiana legislature may be called for Tuesday for the impeachment of certain high officials in New Orleans.

The rumored action was interpreted as another phase of the "battle to the death" between Mayor Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley for control of politics in the city.

The New Orleans States said that Gov. O. K. Allen, Long's lieutenant, was expected to issue the call for assembly of the legislature, possibly on Tuesday, at which Senator Long would attempt to push through measures aimed at strengthening his power in New Orleans.

Gov. Allen was reported out of Baton Rouge, presumably in New Orleans, but could not be located. Senator Long could not be reached.

A lone source to the administration said that impeachment action probably would be taken against Mayor Walmsley and other officials of the city.

Senator Long late Monday was reported conferring with Attorney General Gaston L. Porter and other state officials. Close political associates from other sections of the state began gathering in the city.

Meanwhile the government indicted Jack Pizzalato, St. Charles parish deputy sheriff, for perjury in connection with testimony he gave before a Federal grand jury investigating income tax returns of Senator Long and some of his political associates.

To add to the complexity of the city political situation, still disturbed by the presence of Senator Long's National Guardmen in the registration office, a new board of assessors for the city moved into offices and announced it was ready to replace the board elected in January with Walmsley's support. The mayor said the new board would not be reorganized.

15,000 Tons Rock Fall at Niagara

Second Huge Slide Reported at Horseshoe Falls Since 1931

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(AP)—A gigantic pile of rock estimated to weigh 30,000,000 pounds rose above the water in Niagara gorge Monday night visible evidence of the second major rock slide from Horseshoe Falls since 1931.

Residents said the rock had changed the contour of the falls considerably. It also altered the course of the turbulent waters of the upper rapids, sending more water toward the American side.

John H. Jackson, general manager of Queen Victoria park, one of the water in Niagara gorge Monday night visible evidence of the second major rock slide from Horseshoe Falls since 1931.

Residents said the rock had changed the contour of the falls considerably. It also altered the course of the turbulent waters of the upper rapids, sending more water toward the American side.

The break was half way to the apex of the horseshoe shaped falls from Goat Island, Remy Leves, police superintendent of Niagara reservation on the island said. The island is between Niagara Falls on the American side and Horseshoe which is entirely in Canada. Leves said the rock began to crumble about 250 feet from the shore.

Bulletins

HUGO, Okla.—(AP)—J. W. Smith, son of a Texarkana physician, reported to officers Tuesday he had been struck with a pistol, robbed of his automobile and $20, and left tied to a fence west of here Monday night by two men and two girl hitch-hikers he picked up on the highway.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Early completion of the new Cuba reciprocal trade treaty was predicted Tuesday by Sumner Wells, assistant Secretary of State, after a talk with President Roosevelt. The pact is the first under the new tariff-bargaining legislation.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—J. F. O'Connor, controller of the currency, Tuesday approved a plan designed to facilitate the making of government-insured loans to property owners for alterations, repairs and improvements. The controller's statement coincided with an announcement by the housing administration that it expected to have lending facilities available by the end of the week in every community of the nation.

Small Grain Crop Vital This Year

It Is Only Hope for Emergency Feed for Domestic Livestock

The planting of small grain crops for stock raising this winter and early spring is the only hope for many farmers this fall of obtaining feed for domestic stock. With a fall season of oats, rye, barley and wheat can be planted for grazing as soon as the first of September, for spring grain, they should be planted about a month later.

During the drought many farmers have observed the increased yield to corn on land that had a crop of vetch turned under on it this past spring. Permanent and lasting relief from much of the chronic drought periods can be had by increasing the water holding capacity of our soils by turning under a good crop of humus.

The best crop adapted for this is hairy vetch which can be grown in the winter while land is idle and which produces sufficient nitrogen for the use of the following crop as well as liberating other important fertilizer elements in the soil. Farmers who are interested in a permanent relief program for their farms should see their county agent and arrange for a supply of vetch seed to start their farms on the road to recovery of plant nutrients and moisture conservation.

Assessments Drop for State Taxes

15-Million-Dollar Decline for the Present Year

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The 1933 real estate valuation in Arkansas, on which taxes are being collected this year, totals $315,873,721, the Arkansas Corporation Commission reported Monday.

The personal valuation figures have not been completed but it was said that the total will be about $121,000,000. The 1932 valuation, upon which taxes were collected last year, was $330,815,853 for real estate and $140,654,000 for personal property.

Hamilton Jurors Get Note Threats

District Attorney Reveals Gangland Threats in Texas

CENTERVILLE, Tex.—(AP)—Threatening notes have been received by a number of the jurors who sentenced Raymond Hamilton and Joe Palmer to death at their trials for murder in connection with the prison break slaying of Major Cronson, a guard at Eastham state prison farm.

This was revealed Tuesday by Max Rogers, district attorney who headed the prosecution of both Hamilton and Palmer. Rogers said he received three such notes but was inclined to disregard them.

Four jurors who tried Hamilton, a slippery young bank bandit, at Huntsville, informed Rogers menacing notes came to them through the mails the last few weeks. Hamilton was convicted June 13 and Rogers believes the notes were sent by some of his outlaw friends.

Similar notes went to two of the jurors who served in Palmer's trial at Anderson, Grimes county, and convicted him June 23.

Some of the missives were signed with initials, apparently fictitious, and the others were unsigned. The notes were mailed from Houston and Dallas, Rogers said.

The district attorney advised worried jurors who told him of the notes to pay no attention to them. No special precautions were taken to protect the threatened men in the event the senders actually contemplated violence.

Republican Says Johnson Will Go

Senator Schall Predicts He'll Be Fired as an "Alibi"

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senator Schall (R-Minn.) predicted Monday that President Roosevelt may "fire" Hugh S. Johnson "to set up a white house alibi" in the newspaper code dispute. Schall, persistent critic of NRA, issued a statement attacking a proposal for a special board with authority over newspaper prices—a plan which publishers have opposed as monopolistic.

Declaring the proposal a "menace to the American publishers," Schall said:

"It is a foregone conclusion that, now that the Johnson NRA administration has been caught redhanded by the American publishers' Roosevelt will use the incident for a dramatic understanding play. He may even fire Johnson outright to set up a White House alibi. He will doubtless use the opportunity to win the applause of the daily press by a theatrical gesture of declaring the news print code null and void."

The senator quoted from testimony he said was presented at a recent hearing on proposed amendments to the effect that "the news print trust, under the protective arm of the NRA and by suspension of the anti-trust laws, threatens American newspapers with a charge of $50 per ton for newsprint, which the protected combine sells to Europe at $30 and to South American publishers at $20."

Tonight's the Night!

All roads will lead to The Star office, 212-14 South Walnut street, at 7 o'clock tonight when complete tabulations on state, district and county races will be broadcast by electric loud-speaker at the largest election party ever held in Hope.

The full leased election wire of the Associated Press will bring in state returns from 7 p.m. until 1:30 Wednesday morning, unless the contests are decided earlier. The Star will compile separate tabulations on the Seventh district congressional race from 11 counties; and on the Eighth district prosecuting attorney's race, 5 counties.

The Star's ELECTION EXTRA will come off the press before midnight—and city subscribers who want to buy it without waiting up for it may place their orders with Star carriers as they make their rounds this afternoon. The newsboys will cover their routes again carrying the ELECTION EXTRA.

Co-operating with The Star in tonight's Election Party are Leon Carrington and Hoyt Andres, of Hempstead County Lumber company, furnishing the electric loud-speakers; and W. L. Miller of South Arkansas Implement company, who has extended use of his parking lot across the street from The Star office to accommodate the crowd.

Light Sentence in "Desire" Murder

Father Had Found Second Wife and His Son Together

CAMDEN, N. J.—With the explanation that society recognizes the provocation of a "Desire Under the Elms" murder, a supreme court justice Monday allowed a wealthy importer to plead manslaughter for the double slaying of his second wife and his 21-year-old son and let the killer off with a five and a half year sentence in state prison.

Michael Maggio, 44, Philadelphia cheese importer, was the slayer. He fired seven shots into the bodies of his second bride, Mrs. Anna Maggio, 32, and her stepson, Joseph Maggio, 21, who exchanged kisses in the bedroom of his summer home at Pilings Lake, near Clementon, N. J.

"In pronouncing this sentence," declared Justice Frank T. Lloyd, "it is court recognizes that in society at large conditions such as apparently existed in this case caused provocation to a married man."

Accepting Maggio's plea of guilty to manslaughter, Assistant Prosecutor Patrick Harding announced absence of any evidence of premeditation in the slayings.

While Maggio's four children by his second marriage were overjoyed at the light sentence, Maggio's first wife, now Mrs. Katherine Bonacort, protested bitterly.

"He killed my son Joseph. He should be sent to the electric chair," she said.

The slaying almost exactly duplicated the situation in Eugene O'Neill's play "Desire Under the Elms," in which a woman in her thirties, unsettled with the older man she has married, has an affair with her youthful stepson.

Inflation Fears Are Given Check

Morgenthau Indicates No Extreme Use of Silver Authority

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A continuation, apparently, of Treasury efforts to allay inflation fears over recent silver developments Monday caused Secretary Morgenthau to make public letters from President Roosevelt, one dated June 14, authorizing the issuance of silver certificates. The silver purchase act was signed June 14.

This communication and an answer by the secretary related to an announcement already made by the Treasury—that under present plans certificate to the full value of $129 an ounce, the statutory price of the metal, would be issued against only $2,000,000 ounces of silver.

This, when originally disclosed, followed closely on silver's nationalization, and was accompanied by a decline in government bonds. The government has around $1,700,000,000 of maturing to do soon.

But Morgenthau reiterated that the money to be issued—for the present, anyhow—would equal only the amount spent for the metal.

Nevada County to Close Cotton List

Applications Must Be in by Saturday Under Bankhead Law

Growers of cotton this year will have to rush their Nevada applications for allotments to gin tax free cotton, says J. L. Hiler, county agent.

As no exemption certificates will be issued a county until all the applications are in for that county, it is imperative that all make application immediately. Even a slight delay may mean that they will have to pay tax on all cotton ginned, whereas by applying on time, all their cotton might be ginned tax free.

Local committeemen are taking applications in all communities at present and will be until next Saturday, August 18, which is the closing date for the applications. Growers should not wait until the last day to apply as the rush is liable to be greater than the committee men can handle.

Mr. Hiler, "that when the signing-up is completed there will be no stragglers who are discouraged because they have failed to make applications."

Allred Charges Ferguson Active

Accuses Old Texas Boss of Assisting Tom Hunter in Campaign

AMARILLO, Texas.—(AP)—"When I'm elected governor of Texas the issue of Fergusonism will be buried for all time," James V. Allred, dynamic attorney general and gubernatorial candidate, shouted to a crowd here Monday night.

Charging that "old Jim Ferguson has been invited into the camp of Tom F. Hunter and has accepted," Allred said:

"It is now up to the people to decide if Jim Ferguson is to continue in control of the highway department. When Jimmie Allred is elected governor, the issue of Fergusonism will be buried for all time."

Bridge Unknowns Defeat Experts

Four Ohioans "Crash" East and Walk Off With Prize

NEW YORK.—(AP)—After defeating the pick of the eastern bridge experts four young men from Ohio who play bridge for the fun in the game and not as a business or profession, had possession Tuesday of one of the country's most prized trophies, the team of four award of the American Bridge League.

Virtually a "pick-up" team of four, the two pairs never before having played together, the Ohioans first claimed the famous "four-aces" in the semi-finals and then Monday night beat by 2550 points a combination of four New York experts captained by Mrs. Josephine Culberson.

From the first the Ohioans were in the lead, and after half of the 18 boards had been played the westerners were 660 points ahead.

Members of the team are William F. Hopkins and Charles H. Porter of Cincinnati and Aaron Frank and Jeff Glick of Cleveland. Hopkins and Frank are attorneys; Glick is a salesman and Porter is a business man.

6 Mellon Plants Closed by Strike; Pickets Peaceful

10,000 Aluminum Company Workers Reported Idle Tuesday

ARBITRATION MOVE

Meanwhile, New Strikes Loom Among Textile Workers

By the Associated Press

Pickets stood on peaceful guard outside the plants of the Aluminum Company of America Tuesday as the company's heads stood by to watch the outcome of arbitration efforts by the Federal Labor Relations Board.

Six plants were shut down and 10,000 workers idle.

Portland, Ore., was the scene of a move toward an amicable settlement of the truck drivers' strike.

The truck drivers' strike at Minneapolis was not so promising, with steelmen plants rejected.

As York, Pa., an appeal to the Philadelphia regional labor board was planned by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen in behalf of 90 employees discharged by the York Motor Express company.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Called into session a month ahead of schedule to face an emergency in the industry, delegates to the United Textile Workers convention were told by their officers Monday that major walkouts are imminent in the textile trades.

Thomas F. McMahon, president of the organization, sounded the thirty-first annual meeting's keynote with the declaration that "strikes of large dimensions are on the way."

Southern delegates presented 50 separate resolutions calling for a general textile walkout and a vote on the question was scheduled before the week's meeting ends.

McMahon urged the immediate calling of a strike whenever "stretch out"—excessive machine load practice—is attempted by an employer, unless the union has already agreed to the procedure.

The 600 delegates heard the reading of a telegram charging police killed two textile strikers last Friday in a strike at the Hale Phenix mill, Columbus, Ga., part of the telegram read: "It is impossible to get justice from local attorneys. The city police are planning to win the murders on one of our boys. We have 32 eye witnesses to the murders."

Mrs. Gifford Finchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania, received a rousing cheer as she addressed the delegates.

"I believe in trade unions because I am an American," she said. "We can't have a democracy unless we have it all along the line—the workshop and factory, too. Unions are the only way to have democracy in industry, and if democracy is not there, industry must fail."

"Mr. Pinchot believes as I do. When the miners in Fayette county were being shot down, he called out the National Guard twice to protect the miners in their constitutional privilege to strike and go the picket line—the only time that has been done under such circumstances."

Mrs. Pinchot said she was leaving at once by plane to address workers at Harritman, Tenn.

Empress Zita in New Austria Plot

Italy Worried Over Plans to Restore Hapsburg Dynasty

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—The former Empress Zita, described by diplomats as "a fast worker" was said Monday by an authoritative source to be going ahead with her efforts to bring about restoration of the Hapsburg throne in Austria despite objections from the Little Entente nations.

Italian officials were said by the same source to have suggested that Zita go slowly in her negotiations on the continent looking toward making her son the Archduke Otto, a king.

While British officials declined to discuss the monarchial plans, they ridiculed reports that Otto, now in Sweden, might try to marry a Swedish princess.

"An Italian princess still remains the probable consort if his plans for the throne ever get anywhere," one diplomat said.

Rain Drenches Six Western States

Hope Revived for at Least a Slim Harvest in Drouth Area

By the Associated Press
Hope of salvaging slim harvest was felt in six agricultural states Monday night following a week-end of rains.

More showers were promised for some of the Central states—Illinois and Indiana—and forecasters said weather changes should be more rapid from now on out, indicating that the drouth's long siege might be lifting.

Generally, the precipitation came too late to aid major field crops, but it came as money from the sky for farmers striving to meet an acute water shortage.

Where there were substantial rains, they freshened prospects of obtaining late crops—the roughage farmers had planted in an attempt to grow some feed for the fall. Scorched pastures were given a new lease on life and owners hoped that more livestock could be saved.

Rain fell at the rate of one inch in one hour at Henryetta, Okla., a sight the natives had not seen since June 12. Light rains were general over the state, and in many instances it was the first measurable precipitation in two months.

The Cheyenne Indians regarded the rain as an answer to their annual dance, staged on the North Canadian river Saturday, and prepared a celebration feast.

Detroit Opens Up New York Series

Tigers Invade Yankee Territory With Record of 12 Straight

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Within reach of an American league pennant for the first time in 25 years, Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers came to town Tuesday for a five-game series with the New York Yankees that may go far toward settling the flag race.

The Tigers brought with them a 12-game winning streak, longest in either major league this year. The series, crucial mostly to the second place Yankees, opened with a double-header in the Yankee stadium this afternoon.

Four and a half games is front, getting great pitching from Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, Tommy Bridges, Eldon Auker and Fred Marberry, deadly hitting from Charley Gehringer, Goose Goslin, Hank Greenberg, Bill Rogers, Marvyn Owen and Cochran himself and a fair share of the "breaks" the Tigers thus were confronted with a fine opportunity to pull so far out in front that pursuit would be all out of the question.

The Yankees in a precarious position, needed to win all five games to regain the lead. Broadway betting commissioners offered nine to 10 and take your choice on the series but noted the Yankees as favorites for today's first game.

Joe McCarthy planned to send Vernon (Lefty) Gomez and Charley (The Red) Ruffing against the Tigers today. Their rivals, if Cochrane stands pat on the announced selections, were to be Rowe, who has won 12 successive games, and Al Crowder, Washington eastoff.

To Polls Tuesday

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Democratic electorate of Arkansas moved to the polls Tuesday to choose from among candidates for five state and seven congressional offices in the biennial primary, success in which is equivalent to election in all races except one.

The lone exception is the state auditor's race, in which three candidates are vying for the nomination.

Under the Arkansas law, runoff primary will be necessary if one of the three candidates fails to receive more than half of the votes cast.

The voters' chief interest lies in the governor's race, in which the incumbent, J. M. Futrell, seeks an endorsement term over former State Comptroller Howard A. Reed.

Prison Guard Is Guilty in Escape

Texas Official Sentenced to Fifteen Years for "Break"

HUNTSVILLE, Texas.—(AP)—Prison sentences totaling 15 years were imposed on James A. (Boss) Patterson, prison guard, by a jury which heard him plead guilty Monday to charges of aiding three condemned desperadoes to escape from the state penitentiary here July 22.

The brief trial of Patterson, who admitted smuggling three pistols inside the prison walls, began immediately after the grand jury indicted him. The convicts he was accused of aiding were Raymond Hamilton, Joe Palmer and Irvin (Blackie) Thompson. Palmer was recaptured Saturday in Paducah, Ky.

The grand jury also indicted two former convicts, Austin Avers and Kirk Borders, on charges of complicity in the break. They were named as the men who supplied the pistols Patterson smuggled inside the prison walls. Avers and Borders still are at large.

Sheriff Pittman Sued for Shooting

Wife of Kentucky Banker Ask Damages of $10,417

TEXARKANA.—Mrs. Belle M. Kistler, wife of a Louisville banker, in federal court Monday asked $10,417 damages from Sheriff Arlice Pittman of Nevada county and his bondsmen because of injuries received last November 2 when fired upon by officers who thought her car contained Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd.

Glass shattered by a volley from deputies' guns pierced her body and face and permanently scarred her left eye, she alleged. Officers lying in wait for a car said to have contained Floyd and very much like the one in which Mrs. Kistler was riding fired when she failed to stop. Mrs. Kistler and her daughter, Mary, did not stop because they feared a holdup. The deputies did not declare themselves to be officers when they gave the order to halt, Mrs. Kistler said. She named them as Deputy Sheriffs Will Reeves, J. E. Pittman and Owen Waters.

Markets

Cotton continued its decline Tuesday, falling 15 points to close at 13.33 for New York October contracts. The loss is 75 cents per bale.

November closed at 13.40; December, 13.47; January, 13.52; March, 13.63. New York spots, 13.45; sales, 50.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

What You See Depends On Your Mentality

What you see depends first on what you want to see. And, second, on your mental training.

As a result of this fairly well established truth, we find many persons who can observe a great deal more of the same incident than others. In other words, the image reflected on the retina of the eye is exactly the same in all of us, but what we see of it depends on the knowledge that we have in the brain that is recording the vision.

One of the best examples is the manner in which Conan Doyle recorded the observations of Sherlock Holmes. Whereas one person might look at an individual with pants that bugged at the knees and merely observe that he was rather untidy, Sherlock Holmes realized that the pants looked the way they did because the man had been digging on his knees.

A woman in mourning observes any others who are also in mourning, but they are overlooked by persons who are not particularly interested in mourning themselves.

A woman who wears eyeglasses, and who is disturbed for fear that they may mar her personal appearance, looks carefully at every other woman who wears eyeglasses. A specialist in diseases of the skin is frequently attracted by persons with eruptions, rather than by the ordinary skin that is free from any visible disturbance.

Some people want to see only that part of the world that is closest to the ground and others are always climbing mountains. These habits and attitudes are all a reflection of the inner mentality and inner lift of the person concerned.

As an example of the inability of the average person to record accurately what he sees, a story is told of an experiment made in Vienna. A scene which had previously been rehearsed was carried out before an intelligent audience, which was then asked to make an accurate report. Many people saw and heard things which did not occur. Hardly one report was complete and in each instance the nature of the report depended on the life and habits of the person who made it.

It is quite possible for you to train yourself to some extent in accurate observation. If you form the habit of observing details in what you see and record these details in your memory, you will develop visual memory beyond that possessed by the average person.

In certain occupations such as the work of the physician, the crime detector and the journalist, this is of greatest importance.

Yet the average person is probably just as well off avoiding the sight and memory of much that goes on in our modern civilization.

Cynical Sentimental Stories This Book—Runyon's Short Stories Are Sprightly and Readable

By BRUCE CATTON

In every great American city there is an old twilight zone, peopled by a queer and wily tribe—the gangsters, the bootleggers, the toughs, the hangers-on and the thousand and one varieties of big and little racketeers.

You can find much to be frightened at, in this zone, or you can find much to amuse you. It all depends on how you look at it.

Ramon Runyon finds amusement there, and he knows how to communicate it. His newest book of short stories, "Blue Plate Special," is a jovial, cynically-sentimental collection of tales which make astonishingly entertaining reading.

You'll find here such favorites as "Little Miss Marker," the story of the little girl who was adopted by a bunch of Broadway hard guys, and "Dance of the Christmas," which tells how a jewel robber drank too much Tom and Jerry one Christmas eve and went out and stuffed a quarter million dollars' worth of "hot" diamonds in the stocking of a nice old lady, thereby confirming her in her belief in Santa Claus.

Most of the yarns are in that vein.

Content relieved by wisecracks. They don't cut very deep, but they will fill in a few evenings for you acceptably.

And I'll give you a tip. Don't read

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Child Learns to Want for Angry Command

The moment a man raises his voice in an argument he loses force. The instant a mother raises her voice to gain obedience, she loses authority. The tightened vocal chords usually indicate anger or panic, and neither impresses the listener with real power. A child may sense the coming storm, perhaps, and stop his misbehavior because he knows force will not be far behind, but this only serves once. Each time his mother wants submission, she will have to shout and perhaps add a few gestures as well. The child learns to wait for it.

Children are like wild creatures of the wood. They do not keep ears consciously open, but the instinct for catching sounds is always there. If they know there is only one tone they have to obey, they wait for that one.

Unaware of Habit

Whatever the "obedience" tone is, the unruly child will browse until he hears the one that reaches under his guard. And not until he hears it will he move.

It is the habit of all habits of which mother and child usually are unconscious. Mother never expects to be obeyed if she uses an ordinary voice, so she speaks unnaturally when she wants something done immediately.

There is another interesting truth about the raised or hysterical voice. All physical demonstrations react at once on the mental attitude.

Use a symbol of anger, any symbol, a striking motion, a whip crack, or just the voice of rage and in no time at all real emotion generates.

Like Playing With Whip

A man who cracks a blacksnake whip around tree trunks often enough will feel the spur of cruelty in his veins. If a dog came along he would likely curl it about his body, whereas he would not have dreamed of such a thing before he began his idle sport.

It may even account for the golf temper—who knows?

Be that as it may, the "tone" of voice can generate temper, too, where none existed before. It works both ways. Temper—tone. Tone—temper.

The mother who has to go through an emotional crisis every time she wants obedience is going to wear herself out.

Children can learn that a natural voice means business. Many a mother who realizes in time the futility of loud speaking and reverts suddenly to a low tone, finds it magic.

Drawl Is Ineffective

Of course, a drawl, a listless—I don't expect you to listen tone is useless. The hopeless voice without conviction is no better than the shout.

Obedience is not a question of tone primarily. It is decidedly a matter of habit. The child who grows up to the "habit" of obeying will never need to be shouted at. The student voice is an admission that there is no habit of obedience.

Mr. and Mrs. Daley Hampton attended the funeral of Mrs. Cletis Warren at Eldorado Monday. Mrs. Warren was Mrs. Hampton's sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Evans and children of Eldorado were the guests of Mrs. M. O. Gorham the past week end.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Gentry heard the speaking at Hope Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Maness of Gage, Okla., visited relatives here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester McCorkle are visiting at Eulin, Texas this week.

Mrs. Thelma Bruce of Blevins visited Miss Ruby Warren last week.

Mrs. Maxine Smudge visited relatives at Foreman last week.

Mrs. Dave Davis of Texarkana was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Eley last week.

Many of them at one sitting. If you do, you'll find the Broadwayesque jargon in which they are told rather tiring and affected. In small doses, however, these stories will provide a good deal of amusement.

Sylvia Rivers, rich and spoiled, rules the younger set of Larchneck, fashionable New York suburb. Sylvia gives a party at the Yacht Club and asks all "the crowd" except BOOTS TARDIEN of whom she is jealous.

Boots, heartbroken by the snub, accepts a belated invitation to a dinner at the club that same night given by MRS. WATERMAN, one of the town's social lights.

HARDY WHITMORE, one of Sylvia's guests, rushes Boots off the dance floor and tries to persuade her to go sailing. She refuses and runs away, losing her shoes. Hardy goes off in his boat and falls overboard. The entire club is aroused and he is rescued. Boots, embarrassed and ashamed, is driven home by RUSS LUND, swimming instructor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V

BOOTS had her hand on the side door now, fumbling for the handle. "I guess I must have made a mistake," she said confusedly. "Isabel Hathway was going to pick me up—"

"That's all right!" She could see the flash of white teeth in Russ Lund's sunburned face. "Miss Hathway asked me to get you—said she couldn't get away from the gang."

He slid the motor into high and, since they were already gliding swiftly away from the club, Boots had no choice but to sit back.

"I don't know what this is all about," Russ Lund said lightly and gayly, tooling the little car with an expert hand, "but it's all right with me. I take you home, wheel the bus back to the club for Miss Hathway—that's all right."

Boots felt a slow flush creeping over her face. "I lost my shoes," she said uncomfortably, in the pause. "—It was going to be the darned awkward getting back into the club, explaining to my hostess—"

"You poor kid!" His tone of sympathy was almost unendurably sweet to her jarred nerves.

"Don't be nice," she warned. "If you do, you'll have me sobbing on your shoulder in a minute."

"Those old hens around town would be only too glad to pick a fight with a pretty girl like you."

Russ pursued, interrupting himself to ask, "Which way do I turn from here? What's your street? I'm not sure of it at night."

She told him in a few broken phrases, sketching the events of the evening, omitting names. "Rotten break!" the young man commented mildly when she finished.

"So you can see I'm everlastingly grateful to you for helping me out of this." The words were hard to say. A week ago she hadn't known Russ Lund was on earth, except in a dim way. He was merely the red-necked, squarely built young man in the black jersey, with the woolly white sweater slung over his shoulder. The swimming "pro" at the club. Nobody knew him, except the "kids" and the older women who were timidly beginning to learn to swim.

"That's perfectly O. K."

She noticed for the first time that he was not in evening clothes. As if in answer to her unspoken thought, he said easily, "I was helping out in the men's coat room. Have to earn an honest penny wherever I can."

She liked him for that, even while deploring the necessity. "I thought I hadn't seen you on the floor," she told him.

"Jee?" His great laugh rang out. "No, I don't run with that crowd."

They were at her door now. The dim amber bulb burned in the front hall. All the rest of the house was shrouded in silence and darkness.

"Well—well, thanks a lot."

"O. K.," he said again. "Can you make it in those thin stockings?"

She nodded, smiling nervously.

"Where's everybody?"

"Yo' mother's gone to market. Yo' father's off to the city long ago. He taken the 8:10."

"Well, how about some breakfast?"

It was half-past 9 when Boots reappeared, her golden mane damp and sleek. Linda had brought the tray upstairs and in luxury the girl breakfasted. The colored woman looked admiringly at the litho figure in the sheer pajamas, the slinky robe belted tightly around the slender hips.

"Somebody telephone you while back?" Linda contributed, shuffling around, picking up scattered books, straightening tumbled pillows.

Boots' heart raced. "Somebody?"

"Dunno. Some lady. She didn't leave no message. Say she call later."

The toast was so much sawdust now, but Boots forced herself to swallow it anyhow. She had to face the day—there was no shrinking away from it.

Her mother did not come back and at long last she got into her freshest frock, a crisp brown and white striped linen, and began to walk slowly in the direction of the Waterman house. It was an imposing structure, a gabled and turreted affair of grim gray stucco and field-stone.

The elderly maid who opened the door was grim, too, and Boots thought she looked at her rather oddly. "Mrs. Waterman will be down in just a few minutes."

Boots wandered around the big, overfurnished study with its cabinets crowded with Copenhagen ware and Dresden bits. There were carved and gilded cabinets, leather chairs, eastern carpets. The walls were covered with an expensive but hideous imitation pine, the owner's sole concession to modern decoration. Boots' heart grew more leaden with every moment spent there.

Nor were her fears dispelled by Mrs. Waterman's appearance and her first words.

"Well, well, this is indeed a sad affair," said the tall, imposing lady.

"Oh, I'm so terribly sorry," Boots began falteringly. Then she observed, with acute astonishment, that the older woman's eyes were red-rimmed. Surely—surely her escapade had not been sufficiently important to bring tears from the bright blue all-seeing eyes of Clarissa Y. Waterman!

"It was most unfortunate!" agreed the other. "It was good of you to come."

Boots took heart from this tone, and plunged on. "Oh, but of course I came. What else could I do, in the circumstances? If you only knew how sorry I am! And the way it happened! Why, anyone could understand it. It might have happened to anyone!"

She was being slightly incoherent and she knew it. But she couldn't help herself. She had to go on. Heaven above, was the old woman actually weeping over her (Boots) confession?

But what was Mrs. Waterman saying?

"As I said to Florida last night, one never knows. And Cousin Ella seemed so well, just the past month or so. She even came down to lunch yesterday. When that waiter came to the table with the message last night I thought it was from Henry. He'd been threatening to run on from California any day, to see her. Then I rushed off to the telephone—and dear, dear, the maids said Dr. Franks had taken her to the hospital. A stroke—I didn't even stop to explain to anyone. There was a good deal of excitement as I left. Some young man was saved from drowning. I hope you got home all right?"

The leaden weight which had been pressing on Boots' heart was lifted now. She could have sung aloud from sheer thankfulness. But poor Cousin Ella! She mustn't forget her.

Boots fairly flew down the street, once she had got away from Mrs. Waterman's tearful reminiscences and the iron fence of the big house. Once home, she telephoned Isabel.

"Oh, my dear, I tried to get you first thing this morning!" cooed her friend. "How did everything go?"

Stop Chills and Fever!

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains healthful quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Novel Running Exercise Thins the Hips—Thighs Given Massage

Within the past month several readers have asked for more exercises to reduce hips and thighs. Here's a good one that should be done on an exercise mat. If you don't own such a mat, place two thick quilts on the floor and pin a sheet smoothly across them. Then put on your bathing suit and begin.

Lie on your right side on the floor, resting your head in the right hand and using your left hand to steady yourself. Put your weight directly on the right hip and upper part of the leg.

Raise your left leg about one foot upward from the right one. Then, keeping the right side of your body flat against the floor, make believe you're running. Swing your legs backward and forward twenty times. Turn over on your left side and repeat the exercise.

Don't forget that "riding the bicycle" is a fine hip-reducing exercise, too. And it tends to slenderize legs and ankles as well.

Furting your weight on your shoulder blades and back of the neck, stretch your feet toward the ceiling, steadying yourself with your hands. Now, using first one leg and then the other, make believe that you're riding a bicycle. Pedal rapidly, bending the knees in an exaggerated manner. Make about twenty revolutions with each leg.

Time was when Branch Rickey could come up with a Chick Hafey, a Charley Gelbert, a Medwick or a Dean by merely yanking a string.

But as Rogers Hornsby pointed out, about all Sam Breaden is doing with his slight subsidiaries these days is adding the unemployment situation.

The Cardinals undoubtedly would be right on the tails of the Giants now had they been able to obtain pitching help during the first half of the campaign, when the Dean brothers carried on pretty much alone. Another infielder and outfielder also would have come in handy as Pepper Martin, Speedy Durocher, Frisch and Medwick went out in turn.

But there was no one at Columbus, Rochester, Houston, Springfield, Mo., Elmhurst, Greensboro, and other Cardinal farms worth bringing up.

Vance Alone Available

In its pitching emergency, Sam Breaden & Co. had to turn to its ally, the Cincinnati club, and take on old Dizzy Vance, just as they brought another Gulliver of the game, Burleigh Grimes, from Boston four years before.

With all their franchises, the Cardinals have been unable to produce a shortstop since Gelbert met with his lamentable hunting accident in the fall of 1932. Durocher, a brilliant fielder, but an All-America out, had to be obtained from Cincinnati in May of last year.

At least ten major league clubs have made frantic efforts to patch weak spots this season with no success. Detroit wanted outfielders. Cleveland scoured the country for a catcher and outfielder—and a second baseman, too, before Walter Johnson discovered he had a coking one sitting on the bench in Odell Hude. Connie Mack sought pitchers. Boston, Brooklyn and Cincinnati shouted for success in the National League.

Jimmy Dykes frankly admits that he doesn't know how the White Sox are to be rebuilt.

"The minors, the Pacific Coast League in particular, ask $40,000 for 380 hitters who develop astigmatism en route," said the Chicago manager.

Game Softened Up

With the Washington club suffering an unprecedented series of injuries, there were times when Joe Cronin believed he would have to play the bat boy.

"Players coming up today couldn't carry the bats of those of only a few years ago," Hornsby told me while his Browns were playing in Cleveland the other afternoon.

"When I broke in in 1915, a player didn't let a little thing like a spike would keep him in store clothes. And chewing tobacco juice was the only antiseptic solution in baseball then. You'd take off your shoe and sock, and you'd hop right back in there, for fear that somebody would steal your job."

"Players are swabbed and bandaged to death nowadays."

"On their last trip to St. Louis, one of our fellows heard Doc Painter, the Yankee trainer, say he had to go to a drug store to get some Florida water."

"What do you do with Florida water?" he asked.

"Oh, they like to have it in the sponge bucket," replied Painter. "It

revives them."

"Fast that a hot one? Florida water, and ball players having to be revived."

Life's Canvas
Sunshine and shadow and laughter and tears:
They are forever the paints of the years.
Splashed on the canvas of life day by day;
We are the artists, the colors are they.

We are the painters, the pigments we use
Never were wholly permitted to choose,
Grief with its gray tint, and joy with its red,
Came from life's tubes to be blended and spread.

Now with the sunshine, and now with the shade,
Slowly but surely the picture is made;
Even the gray tints with beauty may glow.

Revealing the joy of the long lost ago.

Let me not doubt it with doubt and despair,
Dedic that are hasty, unking and unfair.

But within the last bit of pigment is dried
Let me look at my canvas with pride.

Us Sharp Knife in Making Sandwiches Creamy Butter Helps to Give them a Creamy Appearance—Children Like Odd Shapes

BY MARE E. DAGUE
NEA Staff Service Writer

Lord Sandwich being in a great hurry one day and not wishing to take the time to dine in the proper manner, asked the shocked butler for a slice of meat between two slices of bread.

The concoction was so satisfactory that the rest of the court followed his example and there have been sandwiches ever since, steadily gaining in popularity and variety.

A sharp knife and well creamed butter are essential if neat, attractive sandwiches are to be made. Bread of firm, even texture is important too, but less so than the keenness of the knife and the softness of the butter. Crusts are permissible on children's full meal sandwiches. Dainty party sandwiches should have the crusts removed. Avoid waste by cutting off the crust before slicing the bread.

Children love sandwiches cut in fancy shapes with cookie-cutters, hearts, animals, half-moons and diamonds. Open-faced sandwiches are often cut in fancy shapes too, and are nice on a tray if assorted sandwiches.

Following are the fillings for many varieties of sandwiches:
Children's Luncheon Sandwich
One cup of chopped cooked liver, 1-2 cup grated raw carrot, 1-2 teaspoonful onion juice, 1-4 teaspoonful salt, cream.

Combine liver which has been put through a food chopper with grated carrot. Season with salt and onion juice and add enough cream to make moist. Put between slices of buttered whole-wheat bread.

Salmon Sandwiches
One-half cup cooked salmon, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1-2 cup finely shredded lettuce leaf, cooked salad dressing.

Remove skin and bones from salmon. Mash with lemon juice and add lettuce. Mix thoroughly and add salad dressing to make moist. But between thin slices of white bread and butter.

Ham and Egg Sandwiches
One-fourth pound cold boiled ham, 4 tablespoons minced onion, 3 eggs and a few grains of pepper.

Trim fat from ham and use to cook filling. Cut meat in shreds and add with onion to well beaten eggs. Season with pepper and pour into hot frying pan lightly greased with fat. Cook slowly, stirring, until consistency of scrambled eggs. Put between thin slices of buttered bread. This filling can be used either hot or cold and it is good between toast or plain bread.

Combination Sandwiches
Four tablespoons peanut butter, 4 tablespoons cream cheese, 1-2 cup a grated pineapple.

Combine ingredients, working them with a fork until well blended. Put between thin slices of buttered whole wheat bread. This mixture is splendid to pipe around the edge of open faced sandwiches too.

There are no insects to pollinate the blossoms of the pineapple in Hawaii. On this depends Hawaii's pineapple industry, for when the flowers are pollinated they produce fruit containing hundreds of hard seeds.
